Col. Robert Herndon, Commander,
Aeronautical Chart and Information Center,
Second and Arsenal Streets,
St. Louis 18, Missouri

Dear Colonel Herndon:

Recent consideration of the problems of adequate target information for guided missile operations prompted us to prepare a briefing paper on the subject. The attached paper has been prepared for the non-technical reader to highlight the essential elements of the problem including a comparison of U. S. and Soviet capabilities.

Since the paper has been prepared for internal CIA use only, I would appreciate discriminate use of it in your organization.

Your comments on it would be useful and appreciated.

Sincerely yours,
